

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Disclosed is an adaptive method for reducing power consumption in a standby mode of a digital radio communication terminal. The method comprises the following 5 steps of: calculating the difference of edge timings between a main clock and a low clock; comparing the calculated timing difference with a predetermined difference reference value; and upgrading or downgrading a catnap period according to a result of the step of comparing.